

A DOMESTIC SCENE IN A FOREST SOUTH OF THE MARNE TO WHICH THIS FRENCH FAMILY FLED ON THE APPROACH OF THE GERMANS, NO IMPORTANT

MEMBER OF THE FAMILY BEING LEFT BEHIND.

From a French
Official Photograph.
(French Pictorial Service.)

AMERICAN
RED CROSS WORKER IN AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL IN FRANCE
DISTRIBUTING TOBACCO AMONG WOUNDED SOLDIERS.
(Underwood & Underwood.)

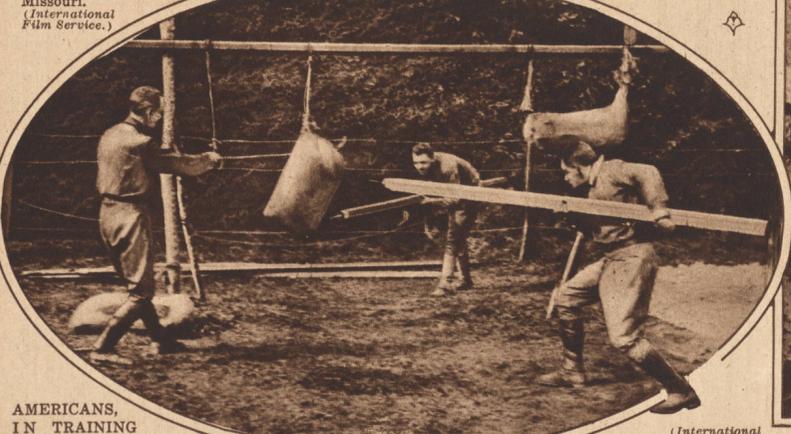

WOUNDED AMERICAN SOLDIERS FROM THE FRENCH FRONT RE-CUPERATING IN A BRITISH HOSPITAL.

They Are, Left to Right: Private Peterson of California and Corporal Dana of Missouri.
(International Film Service.)

GERMAN PRISONERS, TAKEN NORTH OF THE MARNE ON THE FIRST DAY
OF THE COUNTER-
OFFENSIVE, MARCHING
OFF TO A CON-CENTRATION CAMP.
(French Pictorial Service.)

LIEUTENANT FONCK,
France's Most Famous Living Ace and Commander of the Stork Escadrille, with the Living Stork Emblem
Presented to Him by the Mayor of Lyons.
(French Pictorial Service.)

AMERICANS,
IN TRAINING
BEHIND THE FRONT
LINES IN FRANCE, USING FOR THE FIRST TIME, AS FAR AS KNOWN, HUGE IRON-TIPPED WOODEN LANCES IN THEIR BAYONET PRACTICE.
(International Film Service.)

OBsolete BRITISH CRUISERS LYING IN THE FAIRWAY OF THE ZEEBRUGGE HARBOR, Indicating How Well the British Raiders Succeeded in Throttling One of Germany's Principal Submarine Bases. From a Photograph Taken by a Low-
Flying German Airman Which, in Some Unexplained Way, Has Come Into the Possession of the British Authorities.
(© Underwood & Underwood.)