

THE 1ST BATTALION, 308TH INFANTRY, THE FAMOUS SO-CALLED "LOST BATTALION," MARCHING UP FIFTH AVENUE IMMEDIATELY AFTER HAVING PASSED UNDER THE ARCH OF VICTORY.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

FLOWER GIRLS ALONG THE LINE OF MARCH LAVISHING FLOWERS ON THE CITY'S RETURNING CONQUERORS OF THE ARGONNE FOREST.
(© Western Newspaper Union.)

BRIG. GEN. MICHAEL J. LENIHAN, Commanding the 153d Infantry Brigade, Receiving a Rose from One of the Flower Girls Who Lined the Sidewalk in Front of St. Patrick's Cathedral.
(Paul Thompson.)

THE OFFICIAL REVIEWERS. In the Panel, Left to Right, Are: Police Commissioner Enright, Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan, Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, and General Barry, Commander of the Department of the East.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

New York City's Own, the 77th Division, in Triumphant Procession Up Fifth Avenue

MRS. VINCENT ASTOR, Friends and Soldier Guests, Viewing the Parade in Front of the Astor Residence. Mrs. Astor, Said to Have Been Bitten by a Dog, Is Carrying Her Left Arm in a Sling.
(© Western Newspaper Union.)

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY IN DUPLICATE, Symbol of the 77th Division, Borne on a Caisson at the Head of the Parade.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

MAJOR GEN. ROBERT ALEXANDER, COMMANDING THE 77TH, AND HIS PERSONAL STAFF, AT THE HEAD OF HIS DIVISION ON ITS FIVE-MILE PARADE UP FIFTH AVENUE FROM WASHINGTON SQUARE.
(Times Wide World Photos.)

ADDITIONAL PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE GREAT HOME-COMING PARADE OF THE 77th DIVISION APPEAR ON PAGES FOUR AND FIVE