

New York Acclams Her Returning Sons of the 77th, Coque

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

MAJOR GEN. ROBERT ALEXANDER, Commanding the Division, Caressing His Charger Just Before the Start of the Parade.

THE WREATH, IN MEMORIAM OF THE DIVISION'S FALLEN HEROES WHO LIE BENEATH THE SOIL OF FRANCE, BORNE AT THE HEAD OF THE PARADE. (International Film Service.)

DETACHMENTS BEARING, AT THE HEAD OF THE ENTIRE PROCESSION, THE GOLD-STARRED BANNERS IN MEMORY OF THE DIVISION'S HONORED DEAD. (Times Wide World Photos.)

THE STARS AND STRIPES BORNE BY THE DIVISION'S MARCHING THOUSANDS OF THE DIVISION'S REVIEWING STAND IN FRONT OF THE ARCH OF VICTORY. (© American Photo Service.)

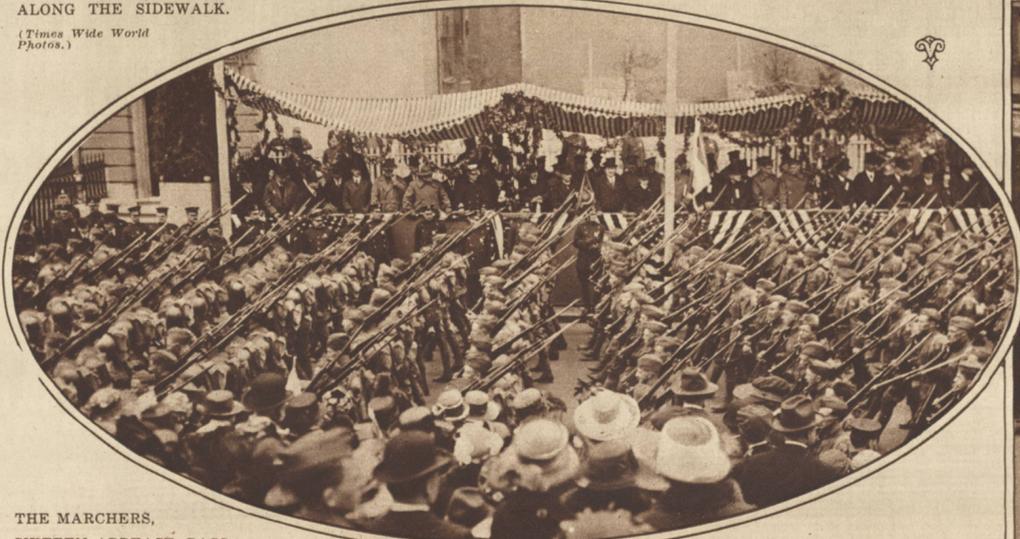

SEVERELY WOUNDED BUT CONVALESCENT VETERANS SEE THE PARADE FROM INVALID CHAIRS PLACED ALONG THE SIDEWALK. (Times Wide World Photos.)

MISS ELISABETH MARBURY AND MRS. ALFRED E. SMITH, Wife of the Governor, Viewing the Parade from a Box of the Official Stand. (International Film Service.)

WOUNDED HEROES OF THE DIVISION PASS THE ARCH OF VICTORY. (Times Wide World Photos.)

THE MARCHERS, SIXTEEN ABREAST, PASSING THE NATIONAL, STATE, AND CITY OFFICIAL REVIEWERS AT FIFTH AVENUE AND EIGHTY-SECOND STREET. (International Film Service.)

THE 1ST BATTALION, 306TH INFANTRY, COMPANIES A, B, C, AND D, MARCHING IN THE PARADE. (Times Wide World Photos.)