

BRIDE OF TO-DAY WILL WEAR SULTAN OF TURKEY'S ORDER OF MERIT.

She Is Miss Grace Darling, and the Bridegroom Is John Ringold McCay.

MISS GRACE SYDNEY DARLING has received a wedding gift from the Sultan of Turkey, which she will wear upon the occasion of her marriage to Mr. John Ringold McCay, at the Hotel Majestic, to-day. It is the Order of the Chekakat, the only decoration ever bestowed in Turkey upon women, and, as a rule, only upon members of the nobility and the wives of ambassadors.

Miss Darling, who is a daughter of Theodore S. Darling, president of the Pneumatic Dynamite Gun Company, residing in Constantinople for some time. She was very popular in diplomatic society in the Turkish capital, and in decorating her with the Chekakat the Sultan has shown her the highest honor that he can confer.

The Chekakat is a large star of gold, on which is a wreath of green enamel leaves and scarlet berries in relief. On this wreath rests a smaller star of black enamel, with a central medallion center of gold, on which are engraved the Sultan's monogram and crest. On the reverse side of the order is the name and crest of Turkey in gold relief. The order is suspended from a bow of white gros grain ribbon with a narrow green and red striped border. It was sent in a red velvet box, on which are the star and crescent in carved gold.

Miss Darling will wear her decoration on the bodice of her wedding gown, which is white satin trimmed with point lace and tulle. She will wear the usual tulle veil and carry a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Edith K. Darling, will be her maid of honor, and will be gowned in cream tulle with a pink sash.

Mr. McCay will also wear a wedding gift which comes from Turkey. It is a sash which is said to be 6,000 years old, and is mounted in a sashpin.

Mr. McCay is the first dragonman of the American Legation in Constantinople. Miss Darling's wedding will be celebrated in the ballroom of the Hotel Majestic, Seventy-second street and Central Park West, which will be decorated with palms, lilies and chrysanthemums. The Rev. Matthew C. Puffer will perform the marriage ceremony, which will be followed by a wedding breakfast, during which a grand march will be played. There will be neither bridesmaids nor ushers. Mr. James H. Burnside will be Mr. McCay's best man.

IN the small reception room of the large hall room at Sherry's, Mrs. Marguerite Lloyd Benedict, widow of Howard Hobson Benedict, and daughter of Mayor Harlan Page Lloyd, of Cincinnati, was married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to Mr. Rufus Billings Cowing, Jr., son of Judge Rufus B. Cowing. There was a profusion of palms and cut flowers in the room, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas S. Hamlin, of Washington, and was followed by a small reception for the bride and groom, and their friends.

The bride was given away by her father. Her gown was of pale gray satin, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. She had an attendant, and there were no ushers. Mr. Edward K. Cowing was her brother's best man. Mr. Cowing's bride was married to Howard Hobson Benedict, Esq., on last July. He was a member of the banking and brokerage firm of Benedict, Brock, Theobald, and Company, performing in his apartment in the Seventh Regiment Veterans' club, where he died the same day of typhoid fever.

MISS EDITH BLANCH MCGIBBON and Mr. Walter Day Trenwith were married last evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Calder McSith, No. 7 West Eighty-third street. The ceremony, which was performed by

It is a present from Mr. Garipulo, the first Dragonman of the American Legation in Constantinople.

The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Kittredge, took place at 8 o'clock in the drawing room, which was decorated with white and pink chrysanthemums and palms. It was followed by a large reception. Miss Corny, of Boston, was maid of honor. Little Miss Marguerite Radley was the flower girl. She wore a frock of white tulle and carried a basket of marguerites. Master Carlos Schaefer, of New York, and Harvey Rowland, of Baltimore, served as ushers. Dr. Edward L. Williamson was Dr. Trenwith's best man. The ushers were Dr. S. W. Fowler, Henry E. Nelson and William Calder McSith, Jr., the bride's brother.

ENO ESTATE SALE BRINGS $2,316,050.

ENO ESTATE SALE BRINGS $2,316,050. Satisfactory Result of Auction of the Property.

Everybody directly concerned in the sale of various parcels of property which were accumulated by the late Amos F. Eno expressed themselves as satisfied with the results realized at the offering of the third parcel yesterday. Peter F. Mayer & Co. were the auctioneers in charge of the sale, which was at the real estate salesrooms. At the conclusion of the sale Amos F. Eno, the oldest surviving son of the late multi-millionaire, sold to a Journal representative that the parcels of downtown property had not fully realized his expectations, although he was satisfied with the figures which they had brought. The uptown parcels, particularly those along upper Broadway (formerly the hotelers' block, however, had been sold at prices which are considered excellent, and which, in some instances, were beyond the valuations which had been placed upon them for him. Very good evidence that the results of young merchant rang the door bell of the Ambassador residence. He asked if it must be a hurry call from a friend, and rushed to the door. "What is the matter?" he asked, with astonishment, as he saw his guest of the night.

"Heart trouble," replied the excited and nervously trembling Dr. Ausbacher quickly into the consulting room. "I have a patient," he said, "who is suffering from heart trouble. He is a young man, and I want to marry her, and I want an answer at once. I want to know if she is fit to marry."

"I have the honor to ask for the hand of your daughter, Miss Maudie Downing," said the young man. "I have loved her for some time, and I want to marry her. I want to know if she is fit to marry."

Dr. Ausbacher was delighted with Mr. Mittleiderer's proposal. He had a great deal to say about it, and he was very much pleased. He thought it all over Friday night, and Saturday morning at a very early hour the STEAMER STRUCK, RAGED WITH DEATH.

The Hazel Kirke/Sank in North River, Crew Just Escaping.

RAN INTO BY A TUG. The F. W. Devoe, It Is Alleged, Did Not Give Aid As Water Poured Into the Kirke.

The crew of the side-wheel steambarge Hazel Kirke, used in transporting immigrants from the Barge Office to the various railroads on the Jersey side of the river, had a race for life last night. The Hazel Kirke was run into by the tugboat F. W. Devoe in the North River at 8 o'clock and now lies in thirty feet of water at the foot of Bay street, Jersey City.

The collision occurred about midnight on a line with the foot of Canal street. The Hazel Kirke was bound down, having been to the West Shore and Erie railroads with a load of emigrants, and had the right of way. The tug, it is said, paid no attention to the steambarge's whistle, and crashed into the Hazel Kirke's bows. A large hole was made and the steambarge began to take water rapidly.

The tugboat F. W. Devoe, it is alleged, paid no attention, and as his boat was in danger of sinking any moment the captain of the Hazel Kirke made for the Jersey shore.

With the water pouring into the hold and threatening at any moment to rush in and drown them, the men in the engine and fire rooms stuck bravely to their posts. The boat made good time for the pier of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Harrison Cove.

When near the pier the Hazel Kirke began to settle and the captain whistled for aid. The tug Hazel Kirke, which was lying at the pier adjoining the Bay street ferry of the Pennsylvania Railroad, started to the steambarge's aid, but before it reached her the Kirke lurched on an extra spur of speed and managed to reach a point alongside the Bay street dock. There she settled, the captain and crew having just time to leave their posts and clamber up the side of the dock as she went down. As she lies now the water is up to the middle of the wheel house.

The Hazel Kirke is owned by the Emma Towing Company. The captain and crew went to New York immediately after reaching shore.

NAVAL COURT CENSURES OFFICERS OF NEWARK. Finds Captain Goodrich and Lieutenant Moritz Responsible for a Shortage of Coal.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—The naval court of inquiry, appointed to investigate the shortage of coal on the Newark on its recent trip around Cape Horn to Valparaiso, finds that Captain Caspar F. Goodrich, the commanding officer, and Lieutenant Albert Moritz, in charge of the engineer department, are responsible. The court finds that they merit and should receive censure for dereliction and so recommended. It also recommends that no further proceedings be had in the matter.

The total shortage when the Newark reached San Francisco was 229 tons. The evidence showed that at no time was the safety of the ship hazarded nor the lives of the crew placed in jeopardy. The amount of coal taken on at Valparaiso was also short, according to the estimate of the captain of the Newark's bunkers, but the accuracy of the weight at Valparaiso was not questioned for the reason that it was not known whether it was a gift or to be paid for. Subsequently a bill was presented for the coal, and it was then too late to weigh or measure it accurately.

Hurt in a Runaway. Mr. and Mrs. William R. Smith, of Brooklyn, were out driving at Bayville, L. I., last night, when their horse took fright and the carriage was hurled into the water. Mr. Smith was injured, and his horse and his dog were killed.
