The Nestlé Permanent Hair Wave

This is the ninth week of the demonstration of the two permanent waves (originally waved on Dec. 30th, 1916). According to their former experience, these two girls would in these nine weeks have slept in hair-curlers forty-two times. Both think it perfectly delightful to have for once in their life naturally wavy hair, which they can shampoo when they like, and on whose appearance they can depend under all circumstances.

Nestlé Waved

There is something in a good permanent wave which the average mind quickly recognizes. This is continuity. It is true that a permanent wave changes its intensity at times. But intensity is of no importance if one looks well groomed and as if endowed by nature.

If you, reader, have straight hair, be convinced that wavy hair looks more attractive. But hot irons or nightly hair-curlers will undoubtedly ruin your hair, while a Nestlé-wave will do it good.

Nestlé Waved

It takes but two hours comfortably spent to make your hair naturally wavy. We wave an average of twenty heads per day.

Illustrated Booklet sent free upon application.
