

WOUNDED AMERICAN AND FRENCH SOLDIERS, CONVALESCING IN PARIS, ABOUT TO LEAVE FOR A MOVING-PICTURE THEATRE AS THE GUESTS OF MRS. JOSEPH A. BLAKE, FORMERLY MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY OF NEW YORK.

(© Inter. Film Service.)

MISS GLADYS HERRINGTON, Whom King George V. Has Decorated With the Order of the British Empire for Having Volunteered for Extremely Dangerous Duty Following a Disaster. Severely Burned About the Face, She Was Much Disfigured Until Surgeons, Exerting Their Utmost Skill in Skin Grafting, Restored Her Comeliness. (Western Newspaper Union.)

THE FAMOUS MARLY HORSES AT THE BEGINNING OF THE AVENUE DES CHAMPS ELYSEES, NOW PROTECTED AGAINST BOMBS FROM THE AIR BY HOOD AND SCAFFOLDING. (International Film Service.)

THE AMERICAN OFFICER, A NEW FIGURE ALONG THE PARIS BOIS BRIDLE PATH.

FRENCH SOLDIERS ON THE AMERICAN FRONT IN FRANCE ENGAGED IN SENDING GERMAN TRANSLATIONS OF THE PRESIDENT'S LATEST SPEECHES INTO THE GERMAN LINES BY MEANS OF SMALL BALLOONS. (Press Illustration Service.)

PREMIER GEORGES CLEMENCEAU, "THE TIGER," Who Last Week Decorated With War Crosses Six American Officers and Men on the Front Near Toul, Inspecting His Guard of Honor at a Recent State Visit to Versailles. With Him Is General Peizan, French Commander in Chief, and Just Behind Is General Weygant. (French Pictorial Service.)

MRS. RYAN AND MRS. COLEMAN, AMERICAN WOMEN ENGAGED IN WAR RELIEF WORK IN FRANCE, WATCHING FRENCH AIRPLANE DEFENDERS OF PARIS FLYING OVER THE CITY. With Them Is George Seldes of Pittsburgh, and in the Background Can Be Seen the Base of the Venome Column. (International Film Service.)