

MR. ZELLER'S ARREST MAY COST $20,000. That is the Sum He Claims as Damages in His Suit Against Lawyer Henderson.

VALUABLE JEWELRY DISAPPEARED A Surprise, an Accusation, an Explanation, an Arrest on Suspicion and a Discharge in the Police Court.

Jeremiah W. Zeller, of Brooklyn, wants $20,000 damages for false imprisonment from James Henderson, a lawyer of this city, and Phoebe A. Henderson, his wife.

Mr. Zeller has engaged Lawyer Mirabeau L. Towns to bring the suit, the papers have been prepared and the case is down for trial on the first Monday of February.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson live at No. 54 Garden place, Brooklyn. Mr. Zeller, who is said to be the agent in this city of a big lumber company, was for more than a year prior to September last the occupant of a furnished room in the Henderson house.

A valuable diamond pin was missed from Mrs. Henderson's room some time ago and suspicion fell upon a colored servant in the house. The woman had been in the service of the family for some years and Mrs. Henderson refused to believe that she had anything to do with the theft of the jewel.

The thief was never found out. Nothing else was missed until last August, when Mrs. Henderson discovered that a lady's hunting case which she had kept in her room had been taken from the bureau drawer in her bedroom. This loss occasioned a painful sensation in the Henderson household.

MR. ZELLER SUSPECTED. According to a story told by Lawyer Henderson at the time, suspicion was first directed toward Mr. Zeller by the following circumstance—Mr. Henderson was seated at a table in the dining room one day following the second robbery and his position commanded a view of the room, but any one looking in from the street could see Mr. Henderson. He was attracted by a slight noise, and looking up he claims to have caught Mr. Zeller cautiously crossing the room.

Mr. Zeller was arrested on the 15th of September, 1890. He came into the police court before Justice Walsh at the Adams Street Police Court and Mr. Zeller was discharged.

THE CASE DISMISSED. According to their story he is said to have offered to look around the case if he could find the matter, but the Hendersons, after consideration, decided to secure a warrant for his arrest.

MR. ZELLER'S ARREST. In the meantime Mr. Zeller had left the Garden place house and had taken a furnished room at No. 214 Washington street. Here he was arrested on September 18, 1890. ICE SHOWERS ON THE BRIDGE. IT WAS PERILOUS FOR PEDESTRIANS AND THE PROMENADE WAS CLOSED. For the first time in the history of the structure the Brooklyn Bridge was closed yesterday to pedestrians.

Shortly before midnight on Saturday the Bridge authorities were notified that showers of ice were falling from the wires above, and that the foot passengers below were in danger of being struck by the falling particles.

The bridge presented a magnificent sight early yesterday morning. The wires were heavily coated with a covering of ice, and looked like so many strands of pure crystal.

Fares were reduced in consequence of the closing of the promenade. Those who had not the necessary three cents and would otherwise have been refused were allowed to ride in the cars by paying a cent.

THE PROMENADE WILL BE OPEN FOR PEDESTRIANS TO-DAY. There was danger, however, for, as the morning advanced, the ice began to melt and detach itself from the wires.

Three of the eight alleged burglars and their accomplices who were arrested in Long Island City on Saturday on a charge of having robbed two stores the night previous were released on their own recognizances yesterday.

Charles Shannon, who is a newcomer in Long Island City, was released on bail, but the other two are still in jail, and the entire party will be arraigned before Judge Kavanaugh to-morrow morning.

THE PRIVATE CIRCULARS OF THE SCHEMERS, MARKED CONFIDENTIAL TO AGENTS, TELLS A TALE. One of the most brazen of these bond lottery schemes recently brought to the notice of the Herald is the "People's New England Investment Company."

The "people's" figures in a good many of these concerns, just as if they were started for the exclusive benefit of that large class which earns its bread by the sweat of its brow.

This concern was chartered in Manchester, N. H.—a State which fathers many shady "mutual benefit" enterprises—some time last year. Its circulars, which are going through New York State, have the following interesting statement:

A copy of the charter was filed with the Commissioner of the State of Massachusetts, who was made an attorney in and for said Commonwealth for all legal processes affecting the company.

For the service Mr. Commissioner will probably look kindly on the lottery. Its headquarters are at No. 74 Tremont street, Boston.

The following are the names of the officers: Henry L. Chase, president; W. A. Darling, vice president; Thomas P. Harkins, clerk of corporation; of Manchester, N. H.; H. D. Staples, treasurer; J. W. Britton, secretary.

STARTING ITS EXPENSES. The company quotes the indorsement of some obscure country papers, but how they got the indorsements is a mystery to those on the outside.

They have two classes of "bonds" for sale—$1,000 and $100. For the $1,000 lottery ticket you pay $10 down on the nail, and then $1 25 per month.

Next Mr. Bond-man makes this lovely announcement:—The company pledges its bondholders that out of the monthly instalment of $1 25 twenty-five cents only shall be used for expenses, and $1 of the monthly instalment shall be paid to the holder of the bond.

How very generous "Only" one-fifth of what you pay in every month will go to the expense fund—the requisite of somebody. When $1,000 have accumulated the lowest numbered bond is redeemed.

This generous company says it sends no notices requesting payments. If you forget to pay your bond, the company will send you a large bill, however, of fifteen days' space, but you will have to pay $1 for your forgetfulness.

They say that $160 will carry you for ten years. That is at the rate of $16 per year. Not a large sum, truly. Then how can the poor promoters make money out of it? It is just possible that the following letter and circular will explain where the plums lie.

A gentleman thought he would test the company by inquiring about the agency business, and in reply the Secretary Britain wrote him:—"We would be glad to have you work for us. We trust you will give this a little trial among your friends, and if you are convinced it is worth your while, we will give you territory and protection. Mr. McLaughlin, an agent for Providence, R. I., is doing a fine business in the territory of Providence, R. I., and we can see you can get a start and give us a list in your locality we will print circulars for you.

They will be pleased to make a bond for $1,000 or $100 or both for yourself, allowing you the advantage of the commission.

THE LAST PARAGRAPH IS SIGNIFICANT ENOUGH. The business men referred to are a watchmaker, fish dealer, and a hardware dealer. The latter commission allowed to agents disclose the nigger in the fence. The following circular reveals the inside workings:—

PROBABLE NEW ENGLAND INVESTMENT COMPANY. CONFIDENTIAL TO AGENTS. We are desirous to represent you as general agents to have full control of the territory in which you reside.

When we give the agency to a general agent we expect he will appoint his own local agents, and we look to you to give us exactly what our business is. We will give you $75 commission on each and every $1,000 bond which you sell. There is no application necessary for territory. We will give you $25 commission on each $100 bond which you sell. We will give you $25 commission on each $100 bond which you sell.
