Recent Slump in Stocks Believed to Have Made Proposed Bill's Passage Reasonably Sure.

MR. FISH FOR COMPROMISE

Assistant Treasurer at New York Advises Interested Persons to Agree on Some Measure That Can Be Passed.

(SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.)

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Tuesday.—In currency legislation at the extra session of Congress the President, as well as the House of Representatives and Wall Street, must be reckoned with by the Senate. The President has made no suggestions to any of those who are wrestling with the problem, except that it seemed to him that there was real agreement for a business measure which would give genuine relief.

The President has made it clear to all his callers who sought his views on the subject that any measure to which he gives his support and signature must be something more than a mere emergency measure to cure temporarily the ills which may be caused by wild speculation and stock gambling. The bill which becomes a law must not be passed for the benefit of the men who have been responsible for the period of insane inflation of values in the stock market.

It is not to be said of it that it is designed merely to let banks get the government's money, and that they may lend it out to be used to start another boom or to prevent a gamblers' smash, which is sure to be threatened again. There is another thing of which the President is very much aware, and that is the great expansion which came to a close in the recent slump.

What the President wants to see and what he thinks the Senate Finance Committee will seek to draw in its measure which will have a broad and legitimate purpose to serve and will accord with the views of conservative men in and out of Wall Street. The President's opinion is that the next Congress which would have been called by Wall Street in the last one.

He has also heard from Representative Joseph G. Cannon, the next Speaker of the House, who, speaking for the Western States, says: "Go slow," but who, it is believed, will be found in the end favoring a scheme to give an emergency circulation of small bank notes.

Mr. Fish is the eyes and ears of the President and the great center of finance. He spent several hours with the President, and he has also had a long conference with Mr. Bond, who is the most conservative judgment as to the details which should be incorporated in the currency bill.

Mr. Fish said to-day, when he was leaving Oyster Bay: "The thing most needed now is for all the persons who have views on this subject to get together and agree on some bill which can be passed."

For the first time in five days President Roosevelt was busy with callers to-day. During the morning he saw E. A. Bond, Chief Engineer of the State of New York. Mr. Bond said he merely called to offer Mrs. Roosevelt a parcel which was ordered by her.

Mr. Schwab Retires; Mr. Morgan Affirms Steel Trust's Strength

Mr. Schwab Retires; Mr. Morgan Affirms Steel Trust's Strength

WILLIAM ELLW. COREY

At the conclusion of the interview he went to the office of Mr. Morgan and had a brief talk with the financier. He spent last night in the city of New York.

The New President. W. E. Corey is one of the best known of the practical steel makers in the country, and he succeeded Mr. Schwab as president of the Carnegie company.

George W. Perkins, chairman of the Finance Committee, said yesterday that the directors of the steel corporation were pleased to have such practical men, Messrs. Converse, Edenhorn and Reid on the Advisory Committee.

WALL STREET IS DEEPLY DEPRESSED Under a resumption of liquidation, which burst forth in several places at one and the same time, the stock market of yesterday assumed a condition of demoralization.

Prices in many instances got down to the low records touched in the disturbance of one week ago Monday.

In addition to this, not a few stocks sank to prices beneath the previous low record, included among which was United States Steel common, which was sold at 21, the lowest price in its history.

The market closed weak, nervous and unsettled at about the lowest prices of the day.

Wall street has passed through many trying days recently, but none has exerted a more depressing influence on sentiment than the market of yesterday.

There was no excitement, but merely a steady outpouring of stock, which took the heart out of the bulls and surprised over the bear contingent. In the end it amounted in many cases to a question not of the price for which a man could sell a stock, but of what price some purchaser would give.

Many of the transactions, therefore, measured nothing more than the sacrifices unfortunate pool and clique holders were making to protect themselves. In the case of Virginia Cartridge Chemical Company, this was measured by 7 points in the common and 19 points in the preferred stock.

The latter recovered 2 1/2 points at the close.

A combination of circumstances forced the resumption of liquidation in the market of yesterday.

More disturbing than that from the Wall street point of view was the announcement that the Consolidated Gas Company was seeking to sell $6,000,000 of new stock.

Had $1,100 in Bank, She Was Arrested for Begging

Woman's Unsightly Bundle Reveals Hidden Wealth After Her Sentence.

Magistrate Cornell, according to his own statement, encountered the wealthiest beggar he ever saw in his experience on the bench in Essex Market Police Court yesterday when Minnie Applestein appeared before him charged with vagrancy and begging.

The woman was arrested by Court Officer James Brennan, at the Bowery and Grand street, yesterday morning, seated on the curb in ragged clothing and with a large plate in her lap. Into which many sympathetic persons had dropped contributions. When arraigned she seemed a beggar of an ordinary type.

Magistrate Cornell allowed his sentence to stand until the case is investigated further.

BEGGARS' QUEEN IS CAUGHT For the third time within two years Annie Mayers, known to the police as "Queen of Begging Letter Writers," was sentenced by Magistrate Barlow to six months in the Workhouse yesterday, on a charge of vagrancy.

The woman has no peer, it is said, in the art of touching the hearts of wealthy people through means of her pen, and Mr. Forbes, agent of the Charity Society, says that in the last ten years she has collected thousands of dollars from wealthy men and women in this city.

Mrs. Mayers was arrested Monday afternoon by a detective attached to the society, who had been endeavoring to trap her for nearly two months. The letter for which she was apprehended was written to Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, daughter of William L. Morgan, at Galilee, North Long Branch, N. J.

Measure the Standard of Our Furniture by the Standard of the Store---

Lowest Prices, Quality Considered.

It may be a different way of doing things—but it is a better way. One evidence of it—the Furniture wagons; you may have noticed them scampering off in every direction yesterday—loaded to the brim.

Country folk, with houses in the city, came back to town and made their selections; we store their purchases without charge until called for.
