

WORD REVERIES TO ATTACK JURY

J. Ferrone, Convicted of Slaying Wife, Attempts Suicide When Verdict Is Announced.

JUDGE THANKS THE JURY

George W. Gammon, Juror Who Escaped Assault, Collapses and Is Injured as Head Strikes Door.

Joseph Ferrone, who is alleged to have murdered Mame Cunningham, fifteen years old, on May 30, 1906, and who has been on trial this week charged with killing his wife on October 24 last, was convicted last night before Judge Warren W. Foster, in the Court of General Sessions, on a charge of murder in the first degree.

After Ferrone had been overpowered and while the jurors were passing out of the courtroom George W. Gammon, a juror, was so overcome by the scenes he had witnessed that he collapsed and fell to the floor.

In the packing business can there be an actual cost of dressed beef until all the by-products of the animal have been disposed of?

"There cannot," responded Mr. Timmins. "Because the dressed beef is the only ready asset of the animals. The other products require time to be manufactured and sold."

"It is not, and that is why the use of a dressed or test beef cost is necessary."

"Who fixes the basis of value in figuring these inventories?"

"I do," responded the witness. "Where do you get the information?"

"I use the market value of the product."

"In your opinion, is it possible to follow the by-products of any particular lot of cattle through your books?"

"No."

"On re-direct examination the witness gave the profit and loss account of the Chicago Packing Company for 1907 to 1910 inclusive. The highest profit was in August, 1908, when the company received $3.40 a hide. The lowest was in June, 1910, $1.39 a hide, said Mr. Timmins.

87 CENTS A HEAD FRESH BEEF PROFIT

Morris Company Accountant Continues Story of Cattle Cost and Price.

GOT $8.40 FOR HIDES

Then the Quotations for By-Product Sank as Low as $1.39, H. A. Timmins Testifies.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] CHICAGO, Ill., Tuesday.—Harry A. Timmins, chief accountant for Morris & Co., during his third day on the stand at the trial of the indicted Chicago packers, introduced more of the company's records bearing on the cost of cattle and profits, and declared that the Morris made only eighty-seven cents a head on 1,156,622 cattle killed in 1907, 1908 and 1909.

This was a profit of one-eighth of a cent a pound on dressed beef, the witness said. Mr. Timmins assumed all responsibility for charging allowances for by-products in figuring the test cost of beef. He declared he never received instructions from Edward Morris or Louis H. Hayman and denied ever consulting with representatives of Armour & Co., Swift & Co. or the National Packing Company.

When the cross-examination began H. W. Borders, attorney for the Morrises, asked:

"In the packing business can there be an actual cost of dressed beef until all the by-products of the animal have been disposed of?"

"There cannot," responded Mr. Timmins. "Because the dressed beef is the only ready asset of the animals. The other products require time to be manufactured and sold."

"It is not, and that is why the use of a dressed or test beef cost is necessary."

"Who fixes the basis of value in figuring these inventories?"

"I do," responded the witness. "Where do you get the information?"

"I use the market value of the product."

"In your opinion, is it possible to follow the by-products of any particular lot of cattle through your books?"

"No."

"On re-direct examination the witness gave the profit and loss account of the Chicago Packing Company for 1907 to 1910 inclusive. The highest profit was in August, 1908, when the company received $3.40 a hide. The lowest was in June, 1910, $1.39 a hide, said Mr. Timmins.

Last Tribute Paid Dead Battalion Chief Walsh by Officials and Friends

Police and Fire Commissioners and Other Ranking Officers Gather at Funeral of Victim of Equitable Fire—More Than Five Hundred Firemen Escort the Body from the Walsh Home to the Church—Bishop McDonnell at Services.

City officials, citizens, policeman and firemen gathered in the streets of Bay Ridge yesterday in the vicinity of the home of the late Battalion Chief, William J. Walsh, who a week ago lost his life in the Equitable fire, and as the funeral procession passed on the way to the Church of St. Catherine of Alexandria, and from there to the Holy Cross Cemetery, men removed their hats and with bowed heads paid silent tribute to the memory of the dead fireman.

Chaplain of the Fire Department walked in front of the hearse. They were the Rev. Dr. Vincent De Paul McGean, the Rev. Edward M. Knapp, the Rev. Thomas F. McGroin and the Rev. Henry A. Handel. On each side of the hearse were Deputy Chief Patrick Maher, Acting Deputy Chief Wrenth, Dougherty, Larkin, Battalion Chief Naughton and Foreman James J. Henry, who were the pallbearers. Police Captain Shaw and the reserves from the Parkville, Fifth Avenue, Fourth Avenue, Fort Hamilton, Flatbush and Bath Beach precincts were detailed in front of the church.

Solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the rector, the Rev. J. O'Neill. Bishop McDonnell was present. As the body was carried into the church the organist played "Lead, Kindly Light." Father McGean was master of ceremonies. There were six carriages filled with flowers. The battalion chiefs sent a wreath fifteen feet high, while the members of Chief Walsh's company sent a floral cross twelve feet high. As the funeral line proceeded on its way to the cemetery it passed the fire house

WALSH HOME PAID FOR BY EQUITABLE

Assurance Society Buys Mortgage and Gives It to the Widow of Heroic Fire Chief.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society announced yesterday that it had purchased the mortgage on the home of Battalion Chief William J. Walsh, who lost his life in the fire which destroyed the society's building. The mortgage, with interest, amounted to $2,513.12, and bond, mortgage, satisfaction piece and fire insurance policy were sent to Fire Commissioner Johnson yesterday, with a request that he use them in discharging the mortgage of record and then send them to Mrs. Walsh.

The building wreckers who have been working in the ruins of the Equitable Building announced yesterday that the walls have been so strengthened that they are no longer a danger to the families of the building, who have been seeking entrance in the hope of finding some of their lost valuables ever since the fire, will be allowed to enter the south side of the building today.

Workmen spent several hours yesterday on a tunnel on the Cedar street side of the building, through which it is hoped to reach the body of the fireman, Nelder, which is believed to be in one of the vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. The workmen think they will be able to reach the body today.

It was announced at the mayor's office of the Harriman lines yesterday that an inspection had been made of their safes and that they had been found in good condition. The Equitable Society reached several of its safes yesterday, from which a number of bonds and mortgages were removed.

The fund which is being raised by a committee of bankers, headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., to be used for the relief of the families of firemen and policemen who were killed or injured in the performance of their duties, entirely aside from the regular relief funds of the two departments, reached $72,757 yesterday. The committee in charge of the fund yesterday sent out an appeal for contributions, confining it, however, to those who either had offices in the Equitable Building or in contiguous buildings which were endangered by the Equitable fire. The members of the committee are Benjamin Strong, Jr., Alvin W. Kreech, James B. Alexander, August Belmont, James G. Cannon, Lewis D. Clarke, Luitpold

MR. ARNOUX DIES AS HE LIVED, A HERMIT

Brother of the Late Justice Arnoux Secluded Himself Forty-Five Years on a Farm.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Tuesday.—After forty-five years of solitary life on his farm at Elmsford, Gabriel Arnoux, seventy-eight years old, a brother of the late Supreme Court Justice William Arnoux, and a member of one of the oldest families in New York, died last night at the Tarrytown Hospital. Mr. Arnoux was practically a hermit, although the members of his family kept him well supplied with the necessities of life. For years he had little or nothing to do with any of his neighbors, preferring the society of his books and the few animals he kept on his farm.

The people of Elmsford long ago forgot the reason for Mr. Arnoux's retirement from the society he was brought up in, but current gossip has had it that he met with a keen disappointment in love in his youth.

Mr. Arnoux had a university education, and in his early manhood was well known in New York society. He traveled much abroad, and the woman who is credited with having wrecked his life is said to be English.

All that is known about Mr. Arnoux at Elmsford is that soon after his return from Europe, forty-five years ago, his brother, Justice Arnoux, went there and bought a farm. A few months later Gabriel Arnoux moved in. During his early years at Elmsford he interested himself in the real estate business, and at one time accepted the post of school collector. Gradually, however, he dropped all association with his neighbors until it became so plain that he desired to be left to himself that no one went near him.

Sunday morning William Townsend, a neighbor, passing the farm, noticing that nothing had been done about the place for two days, went to the door and knocked. Getting no response, he entered and found Mr. Arnoux unconscious on a couch. The old man had had a stroke of apoplexy. He was removed to the Tarrytown Hospital, but never recovered.

Mr. Arnoux is said to have wealthy relatives who live in Europe. Those and some old friends of the family in New York have been notified of his death.

FIVE CHILDREN BURNED

Caught in Flaming Farmhouse in Wisconsin as Mother Milks Cows.

WATERVILLE, Wis., Tuesday.—Five children, of John Deering, and three girls, ranging from one to thirteen years of age, were burned to death in their sleep to-day when the Deering home, two miles from here, was destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Deering and her eldest boy were milking cows in the barn and rushed toward the house, but the building collapsed before they reached it.

Hattie Le Blanc Married. [SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] ARCHTAT, N. S., Monday.—The marriage of Miss Hattie LeBlanc, of West Archat, who was the defendant in the Glover murder trial at Cambridge, Mass., and Felix Linden, of Louisbourg, N. B., took place to-day. The couple will reside in West Archat.

Beginning in next Sunday's NEW YORK HERALD is "Chance," a new novel by Joseph Conrad. The author of stirring sea yarns has turned out another story of the deep that appeals strongly to women.

MRS. ANSON W. HARD DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Prominent in New York Society and Known for Her Activities in Philanthropic Work.

As a result of an attack of pneumonia following the contraction on Friday last of a cold, Mrs. Anson Wales Hard, who was prominent in New York society, died at her home, at No. 21 East Eighty-third street, yesterday. The news of Mrs. Hard's death was a shock to many friends, who were not even aware that she was ill.

Mrs. Hard was known for her many charities and social activities. Before her marriage to Mr. Hard, in 1860, she was Miss Ellen W. Brown. She was artistic, fond of travel and a warm friend and supporter of young persons of both sexes requiring encouragement in the shaping of their careers. Benevolent and of the kindliest disposition, she was a devoted mother of three sons and two daughters, whose bereavement has prostrated them.

When Mrs. Hard was taken ill late Friday night, her ailment was not considered grave. On Saturday her condition became alarming, and from that time until the end her physicians sought in vain to curb the malady. Her condition on Monday was such that her family was summoned.

Mrs. Hard is survived by her husband, three sons and two daughters. Her sons are Mr. James M. H. Hard, Mr. Anson W. Hard, Jr., and Mr. De Courcy Hard, and her daughters are Mrs. William S. K. Taylor and Mrs. Henry von Lengerke Meier. Mr. Anson W. Hard, Sr., is a coffee importer, a director of the Bank of New York and other financial institutions, and a member of the Century, Metropolitan, Downtown, Church, Riding, Rockaway and City clubs.

are noted for their extreme height, is dead in Newburg, N. Y., of pneumonia. He was six feet eleven inches tall and was a brother of Mr. Archibald Taggart, retired lieutenant of the New York police force.

Major John Thomas Hume, forty-eight years old, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, but for several years treasurer of the National Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va., died there yesterday. In the Spanish-American War he went to Cuba as major of the Fifty-first Iowa volunteer infantry and served with distinction.

Mr. William Shafer Johnson, at one time a well known editorial writer and historian, died in Chester, Pa., yesterday, at the age of seventy-five. He was employed on the Hartford (Conn.) Herald and also on Chester newspapers.

Mr. John McKean, the notice of whose death was published in the Herald yesterday morning, was one of the oldest merchant tailors from point of service in the city. Mr. McKean had been in business in this store in Eighth avenue for thirty-two years. He had many friends among the prominent horse breeders, several of whom were with him at the time of his death. Mr. McKean, who had been in poor health for three months, on Monday was taken suddenly worse and died in the arms of his son Monday evening.

CORBIN TABLET UNVEILED. Friends of the Late Adjutant General Honor His Memory. Army officers and noted civilians yesterday paid tribute to the late Adjutant General Henry C. Corbin, at Governor's Island, where a tablet in his memory was unveiled. The tablet was given by several of General Corbin's friends, who started a popular subscription, and the presentation was made by Myron T. Herrick, once Governor of Ohio. Major General Frederick D. Grant accepted it in the name of the United States Army. Officers and members of the National Guard and of the New York State naval militia attended and were received at the close of the exercises at the Officers' Club by the army officers attached to the headquarters of the Department of the East.

INDICTED BANKER DROPS DEAD. Head of Failed Cincinnati Institution Stricken in Federal Building. CINCINNATI, Ohio, Tuesday.—Thomas E. McClure, who was president of the Metropolitan Bank and Trust Company, of this city, when it was closed by the State bank examiners two months ago, dropped dead in the Federal Building to-day. Following the failure of the bank Mr. McClure was indicted on the charge of receiving deposits when he knew the bank to be insolvent. It was said the embarrassment which befell the bank was due largely to loans which, through his influence, were made to contractors. He was past fifty years of age, and had not been in good health since the revelations concerning the bank.
